ournament was resumed yesterday at St. (white) beat Pillsbury in a Petroff's defense after sixty-six moves. Tschigorin (white) and Lasker drew a two-knights defense after thirty-four moves. The record up to date is: Lasker, 9 won, 5 lost; Steinitz, 7% won, 61/2 lost; Pillsbury 61/2 won, 71/2 lost;

Steinitz was once more responsible for his countryman's defeat. Business troubles are evidently preying on the mind of the Brooklyn player, and he seems utterly unfit to do his great powers justice. Expressions of regret can be heard on every hand, and it is plainly to be seen that he has many sympathizers and that the crowd is with him.

The ex-champion by wirning gained half a point on Lasker, and left Pillsbury a game behind. A game and a half yet separates Lasker and Steinitz, a difference which is too much for the latter to make up in the few games remaining to be played.

Pillsbury formed a Petroff defense in opposition to Steinitz, and the game development.

position to Steinitz, and the game devel-oped on the lines of the third game between these two players. The result was a pretty even struggle throughout, Steinitz having a slight advintage that Pillsbury could never evercome. In the ending Steinitz forced a winning continuation that gave him the victory after sixty-six moves.

TO CONNECT TWO CITIES.

A Proposed Cycle Path Between Balti-

Active but secret steps have been taken for the construction of a cycle path between construction of the path and methods for raising the money have already been mapped out. When the National Assembly of the League of American Wheelmen meets here the 10th of next month the affair will be formally floated. Though the idea has definitely crystallized and arrangements signal victory over "Jersey" Gordon, a have already been made for floating it, pugilist of repute in the land of mosqui of the League of American Wheelmen before bringing it before the public. Ever fore bringing it before the public. Ever since bicycles have been ridden in Baltimore and Washington, the idea of a cycle path between the points has been talked of among the riders of the two cities and those from various parts of the country who have come touring this way.

The plans have now taken definite shape in connection with the building of the Columbia and Maryland electric railway. Those who are interested say that the electric company is already pledged to pay half of the cost. A survey has been made along the line of the road with the idea of the cycle path, and experts have made estimates as to its cost. Strictly speaking, the scope of the plan is for two cycle paths. Each of the paths is to be five feet broad, one to be constructed on each side of the Each of the paths is to be five feet broad, one to be constructed on each side of the electric roadbed for the exclusive use of cyclers. The engineer who has surveyed the grades, etc., with the idea of building this cycle path of the best macadam estimates that it will cost between $50,000 and $60,000. Those who have been quietly but actively at work in the matter have drawn up all plans and specifications and presented them to the president of the electric road company. Those plans contemplate the organization of a stock company with shares fixed at $10 each, and that the railway company, because of the advantage which the cycle paths, it is asserted, would be to the road, is to take half the stock, the wheelmen pledging themselves for the balance.

As an auxiliary to the stock company, there is to be organized a monster cycle club with yearly dues. The members of the club will be entitled to unlimited use of the paths, and to a clubhouse to be built half way between the two cities. Those cyclers who do not join the club are to be charged toil.

The men who have been working on the plans say that the president of the railroad company carefully looked into these plans and indorsed them, a few days later presenting them to the stockholders and chief engineer of the company, by whom they were also indorsed, and orders given the complete of the company. they were also indorsed, and orders given the engineer to figure out the exact cost of construction. Here the matter stands at present. The engineer of the road has not yet submitted his estimate of the cost of such an undertaking, the estimate of $60,000 being made by an engineer in the employ of the promoters of the proposed company, and one thoroughly familiar with the grades and engineering features of the proposed paths.

TWO DECISIVE BOUTS.

Pat Raedy Regained the Laurels He Had Lost.

Two decisive sparring bouts were given by the Young Men's Athletic Club last evening in the presence of about 300 members of the sporting gentry. In the first, which was merely a preliminary affair, Hugh Lyons of this city knocked out "Spider" Kelly of Brooklyn after six rounds of the tamest kind of fighting. Pat Raedy regained the laurels he lost in his easy defeat by Billy McMillan, by his

-by the enormous price reductions on Women's Coats you read about in the papers. It is wise to do a little investigating on your own account, where prices are cut in half and less. One of two things is usually the case. The Coats are either undesirable colored or fancy mixtures, or they are one or more seasons old. We are very particular in giving exact statements, for which reason our reductions hardly appear so great as others, although when you compare the color and desirability of our garments they are considerably cheaper than any offered at apparently greater reductions. Raedy was clearly the cleverer and fairer fighter and punished his antagonist so severely that he was completely done for at the close of the sixth round and was unable to respond to the tap of the gong.

Raedy gained many friends by his cleverness and it is possible that he may again be matched against McMillan, who was one of his seconds in last night's battle.

The special committee appointed by Pres Union to decide the question whether Bernard J. Wefers, the crack sprinter, was a professional, has decided in Wefers' favor. Wefers rendered himself liable to a charge of professionalism by temporarily accepting a purse of $100 on his return to Lawrence, Mass., after the international games held in New York last September.

The pure was presented to Wefers at a barquet given in his honor, the mayor making the presentation. According to sworn affidavits submitted to the committee, and made by Wefers and Thomas A. COLLINS TO PLAY THIRD.

Manager Selee Has No Intention of Letting That Player Slip. Manager Selee of the Boston ball club is quoted as saving:

"You can say that there is no deal at all between the Boston and Louisville clubs as far as McDermott and Collins are concerned. We would not let Collins go for McDermott and $5,000 and his release is not to be had on any terms. There was absolutely no basis at all for any talk about this matter. As far as the statement is concerned that Collins does not want to play in Boston—and I am not satisfied that such is the case—that is also erroneous. Collins has stated that he is perfectly will-Collins has stated that he is perfectly willing to come to Boston and will sign a contract when it is tendered him.

"I have not the least doubt in the world that our relations with him will be perfectly satisfactory. His only grievance in Boston last season was that he was not played regularly on the team. Only a few days ago Collins stated that while he was delighted with his treatment in Louisville last season he would prefer to play in Bos-ton if he was given a permanent position. You can say once for all that Collins will be a fixture on third base on the Boston team of 1896."

Brooklyn Club Will Not Move. The Brooklyn Base Ball Club will not re move from Eastern Park this year, and unless something unforeseen occurs President Byrnes' men will play there in 1897 also. The club's president met the direc tors of the Ridgewood Land and Improve ment Company, which owns the park, and secured a renewal of the lease for two years. It was stated in the lease that the club should have the privilege of a three years' renewal at the expiration of the present lease. The land company also agreed to keep the property and structures in fine condition, and promised to repair the grand stand and open seats.

In response to an inquiry regarding the attitude of the Cornell-Harvard-Pennsylva nia-Columbia combination toward Yale Prof. White, one of Cornell's representatives at the recent conference, after consulting Mr. Treman, his associate at the conference, said last evening: "As regards Yale's relation to the triangular and quad-rilateral race in which Cornell has entered, the question has never been presented of discussed at any of the conferences a which the arrangements for the current year have been proposed and established. The agreement not to extend the membership of the quadrilateral against the ob-jection of any member was merely an eminently natural and proper transfer of the understanding which has existed in the dual arrangement between Harvard and Cornell, and in the triangular arrangemen between Columbia, Pennsylvania and Cor hell to the new combination of four.'

Only Minding It. From the Portland Express. It would be hard to surpass the gentle humor of the following primary school ma'am's story: "Maggie came into school after recess recently, chewing vigorously, she began. "I thought that perhaps she was finishing an apple or a plece of candy, so I did not say anything to her. I happened to look in Maggie's direction about half an hour afterward, and noticed that the masticating process was going on as hard as ever. Of course I immediately jumped to the conclusion that she was chewing that children's delight and teacher's horror—gum. I called Maggie up to my desk and accused her of chewing gum. She denied it at once. She stopped chewing, but had no time to remove the gum, for I watched her closely as she came to my desk from her seat. I talked rather sharply to her, and she finally broke down and commenced to cry: 'I was only minding it for Katie Jones,' she sobbed." was finishing an apple or a piece of candy,

WOLVES IN NORWAY.

rom the Pall Mall Gazette. During the last two or three years wolves have without doubt increased considerably in Norway. Not only have they committed good deal of damage among domestic animals, but in some cases the elks have een so persecuted by them as to be obliged to take refuge among the haunts of men. Last winter, in the Selbo district, near Trondhjem, the remains of several elks were found in the forest, with the tracks of the bloodthirsty brutes showing plentifully in the snow all around, while many more of the big deer must undoubtedly have fallen victims to their undoubtedly have fallen victims to their ravenous appetites. Two men driving a sleigh with sleepers for the railway came across a big elk in sore plight; three of the pack which had attacked him lay around dead or dying, pierced with his great antiers, while he himself could barely stand. Needless to say, the worthy peasants made the most of the occasion. They killed the unhappy bull, and they claimed and received the government reward for each of the wolves.

Only, however, when they are in droves will wolves attack the larger animals. At first they try to stalk, their intended vic-tim, and then, springing upon it with long bounds, they endeavor to pull it down. Failing in this they proceed to hunt it in the most methodical manner, two or three following the quarry closely, the others endeavering to cut off its retreat by lying endeavoring to cut on its retreat by lying in wait and bounding at its throat. In spring and summer wolves are rarely seen, as they keep for the most part at the solitude of the woodlands, but in severe cold and stormy weather they collect together in packs and descend to the more open and inhabited tracts of the country.

While herding his reindeer during the long winter of the far north the Laplander must be on his guard against marauding wolves. Frequently for weeks together there is no sign of the common enemy. Then, without warning, the cry of the watcher rings out over the snow, "The wolves are afoot!" And however blinding the snow, however dark the night, all the inhabitants of the little camp rush forth to defend the animals which to them represent wealth, clothing, food, existence itself. COUNTERACTING POISON.

Experiments With Animals That May Lead to Valuable Results. From Modern Medicine.

Calmette of Saigon, Cochin China, reports that he has been able to render animals immune against venomous snakes by repeated vaccination. He has also been able to render the serum of rabbits curative as well as preventive by vaccination of the animals with venom every two or three day's for four or five weeks, beginning with one-twentieth of a fatal dose. He was, by this method, enabled to immunize rabbits against a quantity of poison capable of killing eighty rabbits or five dogs. Five drops of the serum of such a rabbit neutralize the toxicity of one milligram of venom. Serum thus prepared may be used for curative inoculations.

In vaccinated animals, the injection of the poison produces a great increase of white blood corpuscles, while in non-vaccinated animals, the opposite result is observed. This indicates that the white blood corpuscles must exercise an important function in disinfecting the body against poisons of this character. The impunity of the sons of this character. The immunity of the ichneumon was found to be due to the natural antitoxic power of its serum. He also found that animals, when immune against snake poisons, are also immune against many other poisons. The same has also been found true of animals vaccinated also been found true of animals vaccinated against erysipelas and rabies, who were sometimes found able to resist the poison of snakes. It is an interesting question whether further investigation may not reveal some antitoxic serum which will be capable of producing immunity against all animal poisons, although such a theory seems to be the Utenian to be producing the producing
